Mayor Orders Police to Treat Them as Reds and Bomb Throwers

U. S. TO INVESTIGATE

Charge That Klan Using Public Building at Capital for Initiations

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—The police today were under orders from Mayor Hylan to rid the state of members of the Ku-Klux Klan and operations were reported under way to carry out the command.

Police Commissioner Enright last night received orders by telephone from Mayor Hylan who is in French Lick, Ind., directing him to "drive the members of the Ku-Klux Klan out of New York before the organization gets a foothold."

"Treat this group of racial and religious haters as you would the reds and the bomb throwers," said the mayor.

The first step taken by Commissioner Enright was to direct that the mayor's telegram be printed in circular form and distributed throughout the department. "If there are any individuals or organizations in this city who think they are above the law, they are riding for a fall," the commissioner said.

No Immediate Arrests.

There were no indications of immediate arrests. Rev. Oscar Haywood of North Carolina, who has recently acted as general evangelist at the Calvary Baptist church and who has admitted that he helped to propagate Klan doctrines here, could not be located today and police officials would not indicate whether they intended to question him. At the hotel, where he was registered, it was said he had checked out, leaving no address.

When Reverend Haywood was informed last night of Mayor Hylan's telegram he said that the work of the Klan would proceed here in the open, notwithstanding the mayor. He declared that any effort to force the order would result in a test of laws regarding civil and religious liberty.

GOVERNMENT TAKES STEPS AGAINST KLAN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—An investigation was begun here today into charges that the Ku-Klux Klan has been using government buildings, including the United States Capitol itself in which to conduct its secret initiation ceremonies.

According to the charges made by a Washington newspaper woman, a dozen robes and hoods gathered in the Capitol a midnight one night last week and there under the dome initiated a "high public official" into the mysteries of the order.

Denial that any Ku-Klux Klan ceremony has taken place in the Capitol was made today by Albert Demetree, captain of the guard. The investigation was ordered today by Col. C. K. Sherrill, superintendent of public buildings and grounds, and Eliot Woods, superintendent of the Capitol.

The ceremony at the Capitol took place, it is charged, on the night of November 14 and was carried out by members of Klan No. 1, of the District of Columbia.

Reports that members of the Klan have interfered with the movement of United States mails in Louisiana, Texas and other southern states, were being investigated today by the postoffice department.

Smallpox Among Monkeys.

Explorers of the Brazilian wilds have reported finding monkeys showing clear traces of having suffered from smallpox, says a message from Rio de Janeiro. George Clarke Blyer, an expert on life in the Brazilian forests, points out that there is no good reason why wandering animals and insects should not carry smallpox germs from human victims to their simian cousins.

"Never were circumstances better. Go there and you will meet the eastern question which has been troubling the world for the last 500 years. And you will do more—you will settle it, because you can do it, because the presence of America in Europe again will tell the Germans that they won't go farther than certain limits, and because everybody will understand that there is a moral and material power which is to take possession of the world, not for domination but for freedom."

The aged war premier, looking a trifle worn, but full of enthusiasm, spoke for more than an hour.

Earlier in the day he had granted his first American interview, in which he answered caustically the criticisms leveled at him and his country in yesterday's debate on the senate floor at Washington. He had paid special attention to Senators Hitchcock and Borah, launching barbed sallies at both, some of which were so hot that he later asked that they be stricken out.

SHEEP FLOURISH ON GRAIN WASTE

Screenings Made Ideal Fodder for Stock in Dominion

(From the New York Times)

The utilization of grain elevator screenings in Canada as livestock feed has met with success, and a new industry of important proportions is anticipated. The grain screenings and cleanings at elevators which previously had no economic value and were considered in elevator operations as waste products, have been proved to contain valuable farm products.

This new industry will have considerable bearing on the problem of winter feeding of range animals in the Canadian west for winter feeding is the most expensive and pressing problem to Canadian livestock interests, and also will result in a vastly enhanced prestige to terminal elevator sales by adding to them a new industry of very elastic possibilities.

Last winter, the largest individual sheep rancher in Canada, operating in southern Alberta, leased a large warehouse on the Kaministiquia river at Fort William, Ontario, and early in November brought 10,000 sheep from his Alberta ranges to the lake port. All winter they were fed on screenings from the various elevators, procured for next to nothing. This was a most important experiment in feeding, but proved in all respects a complete success. The animals thrived and gained steadily in weight, being marketed in the spring at good prices at Toronto and Buffalo. This rancher is to continue this method of feeding next winter on a more extensive scale, and plans to bring 50,000 sheep from his Alberta ranches to the Fort William elevators before the snow has enforced winter feeding in southern Alberta. His experiment was watched with intense interest last winter by western ranchers and others with large flocks able to follow his example and send sheep to various terminal elevator points for seasonal feeding.

The initial success in the utilization of elevator screenings has other results, and draws general attention to the possibility of building up a substantial industry along these lines," says the Canadian Pacific railway. "A Vancouver syndicate has been organized to enter the business commercially and finish sheep and hogs on the screenings of western elevators, and the project has the approval of the industry of elevator and packing men on the Pacific coast. With the growing importance of Vancouver as a grain shipping point, with a continual enlargement of terminal elevator accommodations, there are great possibilities for this method of winter feeding on the British Columbia coast, where the excellence of the winter climate alone would make the region a formidable rival for the business with the lake ports and other terminal points."

CHILDER'S DEATH SHOCKS ENGLAND

man to remain in his cell throughout the night to pray with him. "No," replied Childers. "Do not send him in."

Placed Against Wall.

The firing squad was lined up, a handkerchief was tied across the face of the rebel leader and he was placed with his back against the wall. Half a dozen shots rang out. Childers crumpled up. A doctor examined him and pronounced him dead.

Persons who saw the execution said Childers died game and that his courage stayed with him to the last. He made no plea for mercy.

Shortly after the execution a brief communique was issued saying: "Erskine Childers was duly convicted by a Free State court-martial of possessing arms for purposes of rebellion against the Irish government. He was sentenced to death. This morning it was carried out."

It is understood the Free State army threatened to multiply if Childers was reprieved. Many persons believe the government does not intend any further executions—for the time being at least.

Childers was one of the most active and spectacular leaders among the men who before the Free State government was created. After the establishment of the Free State he threw in his lot with De Valera. Together with a dozen other active followers, they organized the irregular army to fight the Free State, then led by Michael Collins.

Battled Cable Stations.

Childers had command of a band of youths on the west coast and it was his "troops" that raided and wrecked several cable stations, crippling communication between the United States and northern Europe. Childers was captured two weeks ago near Wexford, while attending an irregular "war council" with De Valera and several others. They were understood to be planning a coup in Dublin at the time.

Childers was brought to Dublin and secretly tried before a court-martial. Owing to the secrecy with which the affair was conducted and the refusal of the government to send any official information, various rumors arose as to the disposition of the guerrilla chieftain. His sister claimed that he has been put to death secretly.

It is confidently predicted now that Eamon de Valera himself will be the next "prominent prisoner" taken by Free State.

The irregular leaders are being rounded up one by one—both men and women.

Childers, although an Englishman by birth, was one of the most bitter enemies of England in all Ireland. His career has been most picturesque. He did not have the appearance of a soldier. He was spare of frame, stoop-shouldered and walked with a limp. His forehead bulged out under a mop of hair that was seldom combed. When he talked of the English his voice rose to a snarl.

Childers had served both in the English civil service and in the English army, a fact which led his Irish enemies to call him a renegade Englishman. It was not until 1917, when he first met De Valera, that he espoused the Irish republican cause with heart and soul.

Childers' wife is a Boston girl. She is an invalid. In a recent interview with the International News Service she supported her husband's views and said she would stand by him, "even if he had to give up his life for the republican cause."
